PREFACE

All farts in this book will be arranged alphabetically. If you know your alphabet you should have no trouble understanding this arrangement or figuring things out. My father and I had a big argument about whether or not a fart could cast a shadow. I said a big enough one probably could. He said no way. As far as I am concerned this argument is not settled. But I will try and stay away from such arguments as I go along. A fart will burn though.

Note to Readers

All farts are divided into two groups:

1. Your Farts
2. Somebody Else's Farts

THE ANTICIPATED FART

Neither sound nor odor are diagnostic in identifying this fart. It is usually identified as a group one, or your own fart, although it is not impossible to identify when it is a group two or somebody else's fart. This one warns that it is back there waiting for some time before it arrives. A person who is uneasy for a time in a crowd and who later farts at a time when they think no one will notice has farted an Anticipated Fart. Identification is no problem when you are the farter.

THE BACK SEAT FART

This is a fart that occurs only in automobiles. If you are in the front seat it is a group two, or somebody else's fart. If you are alone in the back seat it is a group one fart. In either case, of course, it is the same fart. It is identified chiefly by odor, the way some birds are identified mostly by their song, such as your little warblers that stay high up in the trees, or very shy birds of the deep swamp or woods. I thought I should explain this. Some farts you hear. Some farts you smell. And some can be identified both ways. The back seat fart can usually be concealed by traffic noise as it is an eased-out fart and not very loud. But its odor, foul, will give it away, due to the way air moves around in a car. And then someone in the front seat will say, who farted in the back seat? Which is silly if there is only one person in the back seat, of course. This is a fairly rare fart due to the restriction of it range or habitat.

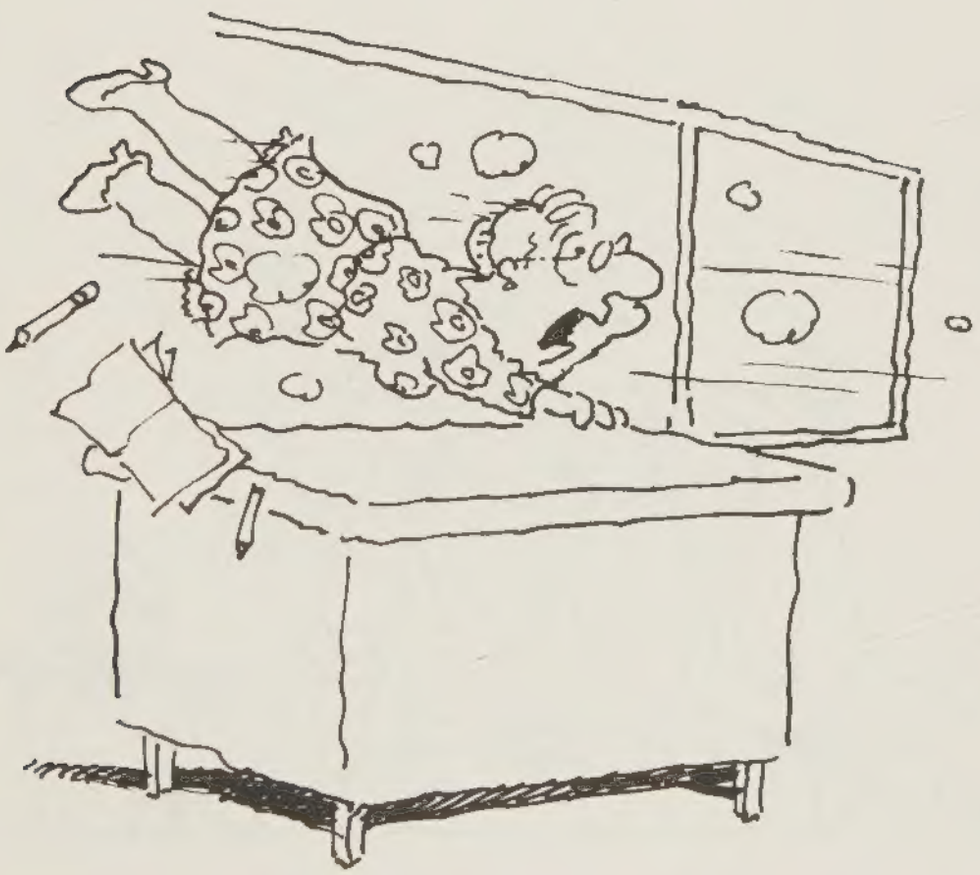
THE BARRED OWL FART

A familiarity with owl calls is helpful in identifying this fart. The barred owl or swamp owl is common in this part of Alabama. Almost any morning if you get up just before daybreak you can hear one of these birds talking to himself. Or maybe two of them calling back and forth. Which is not the point. The point is that this call is kind of like a crazy laugh. Particularly the way it ends. An old bird guide we have says it is maniacal. If you hear a fart that has about eight notes in it, ending on a couple of down notes, and it sounds maniacal, you have heard the rare Barred Owl Fart. When you add this one to your life list of identified farts you are really getting some place as a fart expert.

THE BULLET FART

Its single and most pronounced diagnostic characteristic is its sound. It sounds like a rifle shot. The farter can be said to have snapped it off. It can startle spectators and farter alike. Fairly common following the eating of the more common fart foods, such as beans.

THE COMMAND FART



This fart differs from the Anticipated Fart in that it can be held for long periods of time waiting for the right moment. Unlike the Anticipated Fart, it is intended to be noticed. A friend of mine, Harold Tabor, recently held a Command Fart for the whole period in Mrs. Schlotsheimer's history class and let it go right at the end, when she asked if there were any questions. Most well-timed public or private farts that work like this can safely be identified as Command Farts. Not too common.

THE COMMON FART

This fart needs little description. It is to the world of farts what the house sparrow is to the world of birds. It has no particularly distinguishing characteristics except its commonness. As the house sparrow is the bird you see when there are no other birds around, the Common Fart is the one fart you are sure to run across at least once each day, group one or group two identification, sometime between sunup and sundown. I can see no point in describing this fart any further.

THE CUSHIONED FART

A concealed fart, sometimes successful. The farter is usually on the fat side, sometimes a girl. They will squirm and push their butt way down into the cushions of a sofa or over-stuffed chair and ease-out a fart very carefully without moving then or for some time after. Some odor may escape, but usually not much. Identification is difficult, and in doubtful cases should be listed as tentative. Common with some people.

D

THE DUD FART

As a matter of fact the Dud Fart, as the name might make you think, is not really a fart at all. It is a fart that fails. For this reason it is strictly a group one identification fart, because there is no real way you can identify a fart that somebody else expected to fart but didn't. It is the most private of all farts. Only the farter knows what happened. What happened was he didn't fart. At all. This can be seen as a good thing or a bad thing, depending on the circumstances. Still, it is my opinion that in most cases the farter usually feels a little disappointed. As when you answer the phone and it is a wrong number. This fart is about as common as wrong number calls and as easy to identify.

E

THE ECHO FART

This is a fart that can be wrongly identified if you jump to conclusions because of its name. It is not some great loud fart in an empty gym or on the rim of the Grand Canyon or something like that where there might actually be an echo. The true Echo Fart is a fart that makes its own echo. It is a two-toned fart, the first tone loud, then a pause, and then the second tone, faint. Like an echo. This is the only real Echo Fart, and it is as rare as lots of other farts many times fancier. Just remember that the real thing is one hundred percent fart, and you will not be fooled.

THE G AND L FART

This is one of the most ordinary and pedestrian of farts, known to everyone. It has all kinds of names, some of which are pretty gross, but the G and L Fart is its most popular name and I believe the correct one. Certainly it is the least gross. If you have not already guessed it, G and L stands for gambled and lost. One of the most embarrassing of all farts, even when you are alone.

THE GHOST FART

I consider the Ghost Fart a doubtful fart in most cases, as it is supposed to be identified by odor alone and to occur, for instance, in an empty house. You enter and smell a fart, yet no one is there. People will insist that only a fart could have that odor, but I am of the opinion that it is just something that happens to smell like a fart. Maybe a dead rat. I have argued this with my friends and include the Ghost Fart here only at their insistence. However all identifications of the Ghost Fart should be listed as tentative or doubtful.

THE HIC-HACHOO-FART FART

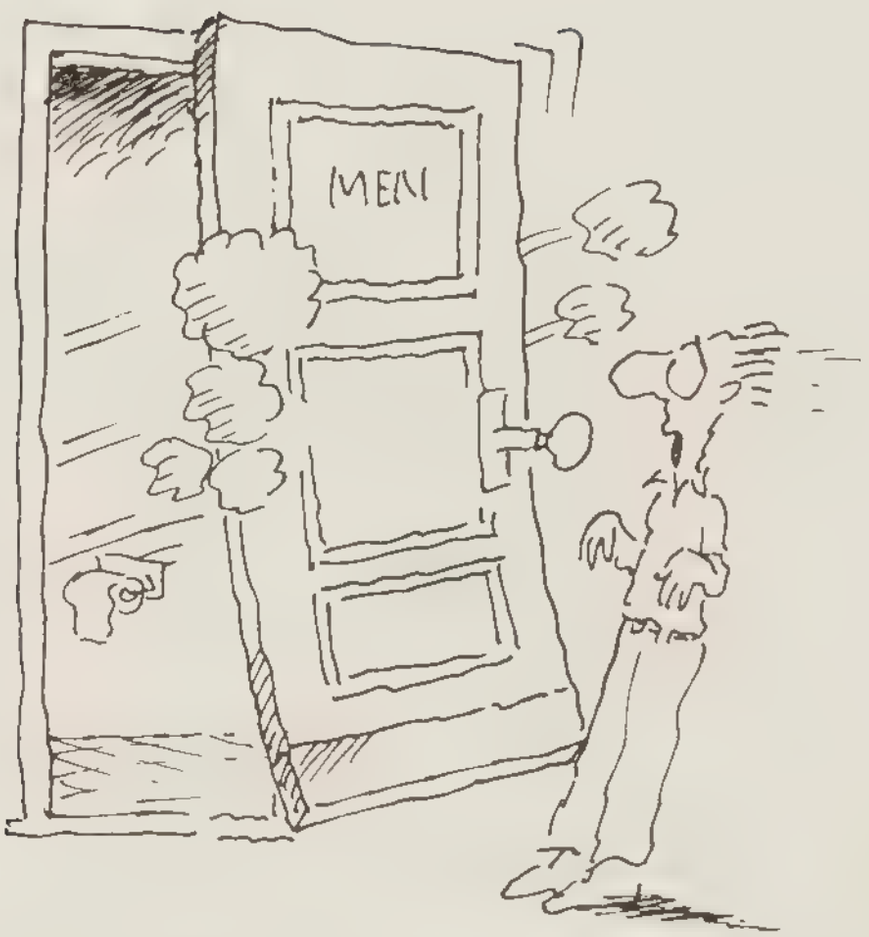
In my experience this is strictly an old lady's fart. What happens is unusual, but I have seen it once with an old lady playing cards with some friends and again with an entirely different old lady who had been bending over petting a cat and who did it as she stood up again. What happens is that the person manages to hiccough, sneeze, and fart all at the same time. The old lady that I saw do this playing cards, did it all—the whole thing; hic-hachoo-fart—before she could put down the card she was holding. That quick. After an old lady farts a Hic-Hachoo-Fart Fart she will usually pat her chest and say, "My, my," or "Well, well." There is no reason she should not be proud, as this is probably as neat a old person's fart as there is.

J

THE JERK FART

The Jerk Fart is a fart by a jerk, who smirks, smiles, grins, and points to himself in case you missed it. It is usually a single-noted, off-key, fading away, sort of whistle fart, altogether pitiful, but the jerk will act as if he has just farted the Biggest Fart in The World Fart. This should always be a group two identification.

THE JOHN FART



I am talking here about the toilet john, not John as in John Brown or John Smith or someone you know named John. Start naming farts after your friends and the whole fart identification business will get altogether out of hand. The John Fart is simply any ordinary fart farted on the john. It is naturally a group one identification, with the sound, whatever it was, somewhat muffled. If that is all the person's trip to the john amounted to he will be disappointed for sure. Common as pigeons.

THE JUBILATION FART

Generally the Jubilation Fart cannot be told safely from an Inspirational Fart except by an expert. Both farts are hard to believe. Like the hippopotamus and the rhinoceros. In the short time a fart lasts it is always hard to make up your mind which one it is. If you suddenly saw a hippopotamus or rhinoceros for as short a time you would probably have the same trouble. The rhinoceros is the one with the horn at the end of its nose.

THE LEAD FART

The heaviest of all farts. It sounds like a dropped ripe watermelon. Or a falling body in some cases. It is the only fart that goes thud. Except for the odor, which is also very heavy, it could be missed altogether as a fart. What was that? you might think. And never guess. Watch for this one. Rare.

THE MALTED MILK BALL FART

Odor alone is diagnostic and positively identifies this fart. It smells exactly like malted milk balls. No other food works this way. It is as rare in its way as is the wood ibis among North American birds, which is the only American stork. Common where found.

THE OH MY GOD FART

The story of how this most rotten stinking fart got its name is interesting. It is a true story. One rainy day about a year ago I took a hard-boiled egg to school in my lunch. For some reason I put the egg in my raincoat pocket and forgot about it.

I do not much care for hard-boiled eggs.

Then I forgot about the raincoat and left it in the cloakroom.

After about a month the class room began to have a peculiar smell about it. It got more and more peculiar until Mrs. Schlotsheimer figured out it was something about my raincoat. She brought the coat out in front of the class and asked, Whose is it?

Mine, I said.

I might have known, Mrs. Schlotsheimer said.

Then she made the mistake of sticking her hand into the raincoat pocket. I cannot imagine why she should have wanted to do this, but she did. And I guess her hand broke the egg, because you would not believe the terrible smell, like a poisonous gas, a heavy cloud, that filled the class room then. Several kids around the room started looking sick. It was the most absolutely rotten smell I have ever smelled.

Oh, shit, Mrs. Schlotsheimer said.

And then she pulled her hand back out of the coat pocket and said, oh my God.

She said that several times over.

Since I have tried to keep this work as clean as possible considering the subject matter, I have identified this most awful and dreadful stinking of all farts—a fart that smells like a month-old rotten egg—as the Oh My God Fart. If you should ever encounter it, however, you may first want to say, oh shit, along with poor Mrs. Schlotsheimer. Which would be understandable.

THE OMEN FART

This is the adult version of the Poo-Poo Fart. (See under P.) About the only difference is that the farter will not say anything. He will just look kind of funny and head for the john. This one is easy to spot if you pay attention.

THE ORGANIC FART

Sometimes called the Health Food Nut Fart. Unless you are into health foods this will have to be a group two identification. The person who farts an Organic Fart may be talking about the healthy food he eats even when he farts. This makes identification easy. If he is heavily into health foods he may even ask if you noticed how good and pure and healthy his fart smells. It may smell to you like any other fart, but there is no harm in agreeing with him. He is doing what he thinks is best.

THE QUIVER FART

A group one identification fart only. When you fart it quivers. If it tickles then it is the Tickle Fart. If you have to scratch it then it is the Scratchass Fart.

R

THE RAMBLING PHADUKA FART

You must not be fooled by its pretty sounding name, as this is one of the most frightening of all farts. It is frightening to farter and spectator alike. It has a sound of pain to it. What is most diagnostic about it however is its length. It is the longest lasting fart there is. It will sometimes leave the farter unable to speak. As though he has had the wind knocked out of him. Spectators have been known to bite their knuckles bloody or even to faint while this fart is going on. A strong, loud, wavering fart, it goes on for at least fifteen seconds. If you are going to claim this one for your list you had better have witnesses, or there is a good chance people will say you have lied about it. Exceedingly rare.

THE RELIEF FART

The name should give you a pretty good idea about this particular fart. There are some farts that are a nuisance and some that are funny and some that are very peculiar, but the most popular fart of all is probably the Relief Fart. Sound or odor doesn't matter. What matters is the tremendous sense of relief that you have finally farted. This is usually a group one identification, but if the farter is the sort of person who is not afraid to show his feelings this can be a positive group two identification as well. Some people will even say, "Wow, what a relief." Very common.

THE RELUCTANT FART

This is a fart that has really been around for awhile. It is probably one of the oldest farts known to man. (See Montaigne, quoted elsewhere in this work.) The Reluctant Fart is a fart that seems to have a mind of its own. It gives the impression that it likes staying where it is. It will come when it is ready, not before. This can take half a day in some instances. My mother says it was that way with me about getting born. I was in no big hurry. Neither is the Reluctant Fart. When it is finally farted it is way past due. According to my mother I was way past due by about a month. This may be one of the reasons my father sometimes refers to me as, "You little fart." Although he probably has better reasons than t[illegible]

THE RUSTY GATE FART

The sound of this fart seems almost impossible for a fart. It is the most dry and squeaky sound a fart can make. It sounds like the sound a blue jay makes when it is not crying kat kat. The Rusty Gate Fart sounds as if it would have worked a lot easier if it had been oiled. This fart is unknown to me as a group one identification, but it sounds like a fart that hurts.

S

THE S.B.D. FART

S.B.D. stands for silent but deadly. This is no doubt one of the most common farts that exists. No problem of identification with this one. Either group.

THE SANDPAPER FART

This one scratches. Otherwise it may not amount to much. As a group one identification it is hard to miss. You may wonder if there is more to it than just some gas. Otherwise, what is it that scratches? There is still much that is not known about farts.

You should remember that if you reach back and scratch, it automatically becomes a Scratchass Fart. So if you need this one for your list, don't scratch. Common.

THE SINNER'S FART

This is just a different name for the S.B.D. Fart and should not be listed separately, in my opinion. Still, some people like the idea that bad people fart worse farts than good people. So if you like to think something like this is true I suppose it is up to you. Common with people who think like this.

THE SKILLSAW FART

A truly awesome fart. It vibrates the farter. Really shakes him up. People back away. It sounds like an electric skillsaw ripping through a piece of half-inch plywood. Very impressive. Not too common.

THE SMIRK FART

Another name for the Jerk Fart. Most jerks smirk when they fart.

THE SONIC BOOM FART

The people who believe in this fart claim that it is even bigger than the Biggest Fart In The World Fart. The Sonic Boom Fart is suppose to shake the house and rattle the windows. That is ridiculous. No fart in the world shakes houses and rattles windows. A fart that could do that would put the farter into orbit or blow his crazy head off.

The Sonic Boom Fart does not exist.

THE SPLATTER FART

Unfortunately the Splatter Fart exists. It is the wettest of all farts. It probably should not be called a fart at all. A group one identification only. And you better hope not.

THE STUTTER FART

If you think stuttering is funny this is a very funny fart. It is a fart that can't seem to get going. The sound is best described as pt, pt, pt-pt, pt-pt-pt, pop, pop-pop-pop-POW. It is usually a forced out fart that gets caught crossways as they say and only gets farted after considerable effort.

The Stutter Fart is not usually a funny fart to the farter. Rare.

THE TACO BELL FART

The Taco Bell Fart is far richer and full-bodied than your ordinary Junk Fart and takes longer to build up. Sometimes hours or even a day. But it will get there. And it will hang around after, too, even on a windy day.

THE TEFLON FART

Slips out without a sound and no strain at all. A very good fart in situations where you would rather not fart at all. You can be talking to someone and not miss saying a word. If the wind is right he will never know. Unfortunately this is a rare fart unless the farter has been eating gumbo. Gumbo is a southern dish with a lot of okra in it. Cooked okra is so much slime.

THE THANK GOD I'M ALONE FART

Everyone knows this rotten fart. You look around after you have farted and say Thank God I'm alone. Then you get out of there. If it has to happen though, that is the best way for it to happen. Like finding out that your fly is unzipped. You should be alone.

THE THUNDER MUG FART

An unusual fart because the only true Thunder Mug Fart has to be farted into one of those old heavy china thunder mugs, which is where the name came from. A porto-pottie or your regular john does not give the same effect at all. A Thunder Mug Fart really thunders. Uncommon due to the fact that old fashioned thunder mugs are uncommon.

THE TICKLE FART

A group one only and one of the easiest to identify. It tickles. Usually a slow soft sort of fart. If you like being tickled this is the fart for you. Personally, it is no favorite of mine. I do not like being tickled, and if I did that is not where I would want to be tickled at.

U

THE UNDERWEAR RIPPER FART

Sound alone is diagnostic with this fart. It will usually happen when the person is sitting down. It is one of the longer farts. It will sound so much like a piece of cloth being ripped that it can fool a person sitting in the next room. Naturally it will not fool the farter. He will know he has not ripped his underwear. But right then he may not be too sure about anything else.

THE UP-TIGHT FART

This is a kind of drawn-out Stutter Fart except that this one squeaks. Like a scared mouse. It takes an already naturally up-tight person to fart this fart. When he knows he has got to fart, like it or not, he gets even more up-tight. He may snap his spincters shut like a steel trap, but out comes the fart. Squeak, squeak, squeak. It is embarrassing for everybody. Fairly rare, as people this up-tight generally stay to themselves most of the time anyhow.

THE VENTRILOQUIST FART

This is something that just happens. Like an albino squirrel. It is doubtful if anyone can learn to throw his farts. But sometimes if all the conditions are right it will happen. And the person sitting next to the farter will look surprised and embarrassed and the farter will look surprised and pleased. This will have been a Ventriloquist Fart. This is an extremely hard one to identify unless you are the farter.

THE WHO CUT THE CHEEZE FART

An easy identification with this one. Someone has got to say, Who cut the cheeze? when the fart is first noticed or it cannot be called a Who Cut The Cheeze Fart. It may or may not have an odor like strong cheese, but it will have an odor.

THE XYLOPHONE FART

I am not really positive there is a Xylophone Fart. I have never heard one myself. I have put it in as a possible fart subject to verification. This way I will have two farts starting with the letter X. If you will look in a dictionary you will see that there are not too many words in the whole English language that begin with the letter X. So the two X farts will have to do.

However, this gives your real fart freak something to shoot for. Who will be the first to positively identify the Xylophone Fart? Time will tell.

THE YODEL FART

The Yodel Fart sounds like a fart whose voice is changing, or like a yodel. It can be either a Swiss mountain yodeler type of yodel or an American cowboy singer type of yodel. Either one will do. Not so rare as the Xylophone Fart, but just about.

THE YO-YO FART

This is a spectacular fart. A real dilly. Sound alone identifies it. It makes the Octave Fart sound like a hiccough. It starts out on the highest fart note possible and goes all the way down to the lowest fart note possible. And then to the amazement of everyone it comes all the way back up again. Extremely rare.
